

A search for the perfect metals for your home can make you feel a bit like Goldilocks. That chrome is too stark. That gold is too blingy, and that brass looks too antique. Enter, copper. Thanks to its warmth, contrast and shine, the chemical element is having a bit of a moment. Knowing that virtually nothing can compare to the perfect copper shade that British designer Tom Dixon created in 2005, that's where we start.
