

Metals are an undeniably hot trend in home design, and they've continued their stay in the 'hot trends' chart for a few seasons now. While brass and stainless steel definitely find more space in the modern kitchen, the warm allure of copper is not something to be ignored either. The last few years have seen a growing number of homeowners and designers embrace copper to revitalize a kitchen space and give it that inviting and glittering allure. From the classic kitchens that showcase styles such as farmhouse and rustic to contemporary delights that are sleek and stylish, copper finds a place in every kitchen.

Hammered copper tile backsplash gives the kitchen a rustic visual appeal
[Design: Native Trails – Country Classic Design Center / Photography by Heidi Long, Longviews Studio]