MAKEOVER

LIGHTEN UP

As part of a three-year renovation, Eva Kosmas Flores and husband Jeremy Flores turned their finished attic into a serene master suite. In the bathroom, the claw-foot tub (left) is actually made of acrylic; its relatively light weight at 100 pounds made it easier to haul upstairs. Rayne acrylic claw-foot tub, from $1,099; signaturehardware.com. Restoration plaster; mas terofplaster.com. Plaster tinted in Nebulous White; sherwin-williams.com.

MATERIALS MATTER

The bathroom is grounded in earthy textures: a vanity made of salvaged wood, crates and baskets for storage, and a sink made of a special concrete-ite material that doesn't absorb stains. Trough 3619 NativeStone bathroom sink, from $1,225; native trails.net. Connor wall mount faucet, from $249; Fords Mill sconce, from $260; and Linfield hook, from $25; rejuvenation.com. Penarth walnut oval wall mirror, $299; crateandbarrel.com.
