

FOR THE LOVE OF LAKES

The kitchen's lighter cabinets unite the fresh take on lake living. The "Native Stone" farm sink is by Native Trails in slate; the High Arch faucet in chrome is from Perrin & Rowe; the dual fuel range is from Wolf, and the French Door refrigerator is from Subzero.

COMING HOME TO INDIGO LAKE HOUSE

Lakes evoke serenity, promise, intimacy, grandeur, and ultimately a connection to the natural world. On the edge of Whitefish Lake sits a home both striking and intuitive in its design and construction. A home that follows the gently sloping topography to the sights and sounds of the lake and its patina of ever-changing moods that, by definition, perfectly accompany the simple, yet dramatic structure comprised of cedar woods, metal cladding, stucco, and natural stones. And, like a connection to the natural environment, the homeowner and her passionate team of architect, builder, and interior designer knew from the start that their connection and collaboration would be essential in the process of creating a home built to effortlessly transition to the lakeshore while emphasizing the embrace of the spectacular cedar groves surrounding the property.

The living area bursts with natural light and views of the cedar grove. The handcrafted steel-paneled fireplace is made by Acutech Furniture and measures 7' W x 24' H. Designed by Hunter & Company Interior Design. The warm and inviting area is perfect for any season.
