By Alia Paavola | July 07, 2017

Palo Alto, Calif.-based Lucile Packard Children's Hospital Stanford received a $10 million donation from local philanthropist Bonnie Uytensu to help finance a new surgery center, according to The Almanac.

The new surgery center will include six surgical suites, nearly doubling the number of surgical suites at the hospital. The hospital will honor the $10 million donor by including her name on the doors to the surgical suites.

This is not the first donation Ms. Uytensu made to the children's hospital. She has previously gifted money to support medical research.
